2. Transportation to and from PKS Llamas (PKS) is the responsibility of the owner of the female to be bred.

3. PKS requires that the female being brought to PKS be insured. We recommend Wilkins Livestock Insurer. PKS will ask for proof of insurance and the cost of livestock insurance will be the responsibility of the owner of the female to be bred. Owner agrees to indemnify and hold PKS harmless from any liability of any kind and to release PKS from all claims for damages in connection with the care and breeding of Owner's female (and any cria at her side) while at PKS.

4. There will be no boarding charge for the first forty five(45) days of stay. After forty five (45) days, PKS charges $5.00 per day per llama. If the female has a cria on her side that is five (5) months of younger, there is no additional charge for the cria.

5. Any vet or unusual miscellaneous charges for medical reasons that are incurred while boarding at PKS will be the responsibility of the female's owner. PKS will notify owner before Vet is contacted unless time is of the essence.
6. All llamas being brought to PKS must have a valid health certificate from a certified vet issued within fifteen (15) days. The llama must have been de-wormed within five (5) days.
7. Boarding stay and/or charges cover daily feeding of PKS mixed feed, water, hay and pasture grazing. Llamas will also be weighed on a digital scale.
9. PKS uses the "spit off" refusal method of pregnancy testing. Ultrasound testing will be an additional expense. PKS will need to be advised at the time of delivery if ultrasound testing is required.
10. PKS guarantees a live cria birth with the exception of death due to the Owner's negligence. It is not the intent of PKS to provide breeding services to females which have had any history of difficulty in conceiving or in maintaining a pregnancy or in giving birth.
11. The breeding fees are not refundable. PKS will rebreed free of charge to a herdsire of the female owner's choice based on equal breeding fees.
